Civil dispositions for a given time period

FACT SHEET

Basic Principles

- Security restrictions (juvenile, impound, etc.) as required for all public/web access, per the Manual on Recordkeeping and the Illinois Supreme Court
- Each Court can make customized rules like “Don’t show address in divorce cases”
- The Court “owns” the data- the license agreement prohibits other uses most court data elements are available for free when accessed one court and one case at a time, but users may choose to subscribe to convenient multi-court/multi-case services, offering a few “subscriber only” data elements, personalized case lists and court schedules.
- These subscriptions are free to personnel from participating courts. This applies to full-time court clerk and probation staff, as well as judges, and to PC JIMS PROSECUTOR, PC JIMS PROBATION and PC JIMS PUBLIC DEFENDER license holders.
- With the optional EXTENDED ACCESS SERVICE*, the Court can even grant court-specified authorized subscribers such as a juvenile case judge access to non-public data, such as juvenile cases.
- Single-court premium subscription services are also available. They can be purchased for Court Docket Reports, Cases Filed Reports, Civil Dispositions Reports and Criminal Dispositions Reports.
- The Court’s costs are partially offset by revenues from paid subscriptions in your area.

How does help court staff?

- Lowered traffic and questions from the public
- Decreased time spent on record checks
- Reduced scheduling/docket phone inquiries (some clerks have reported calls dropping by about 2/3)
- Court-specific web pages are included, if the court doesn’t already have a website

How does it work?

Court database tracks cases that have changed

What else?

- Secure and low-maintenance, with one centralized server not located at the court
- No firewall issues since the traffic is only outgoing
- Central server allows multi-court searches
- Central server reduces initial cost

What does it cost?

A license ranges in cost, depending on the size of the court and the population it serves.
